- Operations update n°1 was issued on 31 January 2015 to provide information regarding the operation 1 month since its launch.

Summary: The refugees from South Sudan continue to arrive in Ethiopia, mainly into the Gambela Regional State through three border entry points citing fighting and food insecurity as the main reasons for their flight, in addition to citing human rights abuses and lack of basic services. As of 12 December 2014, UNHCR records indicate that 191,659 people have now arrived in the Gambela region since January 2014. The average arrival rate of has dropped significantly with commencement of rains in various locations in the Gambela region and in South Sudan, making access to border entry points difficult. Whereas the average arrival rate is more than 25,000 over the entire year only 1,426 South Sudanese refugees arrived in Ethiopia during the month of October, and 420 in November. Yet, numbers are expected to resume once again once flood water recede as the situation in South Sudan is not improving.

The National Society and IFRC are in discussion with Administration for Refugee and Returnee Affairs (ARRA) and UNHCR on operational areas as there is continued lack of clarity around camp locations and the future plan for Leitchor camp and Pagak entry point will be closed. Additionally ERCS and IFRC spent the weeks following the launch of the emergency appeal negotiating operational space with ARRA and UNHCR as well as preparing the ground for recruitment of staff and engaging potential donors in support of the operation.

The IFRC, on behalf of the Ethiopia Red Cross, would like to thank all those that have contributed to this Emergency Appeal, including Danish Red Cross/ Danish Government, Japanese Red Cross Society, Austrian Red Cross and American Red Cross. Additionally, IFRC would also like to thank those who have committed to support this appeal through soft pledges including Netherlands Red Cross, Swedish Red Cross and Finnish Red Cross.

More partners are encouraged to support the Appeal to enable ERCS provide assistance to the targeted beneficiaries through the planned activities as detailed in the Emergency Plan of Action \(EPoA\).

The Situation

Overview

The Ethiopian Government confirmed the location of two new camps in Gambela region and the two sites require development namely; Koben (43km from Gambela town) and Cholan (18km from Gambela town). The UNHCR is currently conducting site assessments and developing the matrix for operational activities and partners. The Government also confirmed that Pagak entry point will be closed despite the fact that refugees continue to arrive in Ethiopia into the Gambela Regional State, mainly through Pagak (49%), Burbiey (24%), and Akobo (22%) border entry points as indicated by the assessments carried out.

Furthermore, it is unclear what the fate of Leitchor camp is and partners continue to provide services until further notice. Negotiations with ARRA and UNHCR continue while activities on a small scale also continue in Leitchor camp through existing volunteers and staff. Restoring Family Link (RFL) is ongoing with ICRC and ERCS and Swiss RC longer term development project is underway.

A donor teleconference was held on January 22, 2015 with ERCS, IFRC and had PNS participation. The purpose of the call was to follow up on the initial teleconference in December to share up to date information on the situation in Gambela and to respond to queries potential partners had expressed. During the call partners confirmed their interest in supporting the appeal. Meetings have been held in Nairobi and Addis with potential PNS contributors. An application was submitted to ECHO and the appeal was shared with PRM in Washington DC and DFID in Addis. Meetings with PRM and DFID in Addis are being scheduled.

The number of refugees in Ethiopia is over 660,987 individuals, with the number increasing on a daily basis due to the current influx from South Sudan. The South Sudanese population is now the largest population group, with 251,545 individuals. Information at the time of publishing the appeal indicated that the total number of South Sudanese refugees who have entered Ethiopia since the outbreak of the conflict in mid-December 2013 was over 194,546 individuals, comprising 191,944 individuals who entered through Gambela and 2,302 who entered through the Assosa region. The average arrival rate of South Sudanese refugees to the Gambela region has remained low throughout December and January as the rainy season comes to an end.

From the assessment carried out it is estimated that 300,000 South Sudanese are expected to arrive in Gambela by the end of 2014, with a further 50,000 expected by March 2015. The planning figure for arrivals by the end of 2015 is a total 550,000. Current capacities are overstretched and humanitarian actors are revising plans and funding with the expected caseload number Refugees are arriving on foot over difficult and remote terrain, in a deteriorating nutritional status, and are traumatized and exhausted by travel and exposure to armed violence and human rights abuses in their home country. Critical issues identified when refugees arrive include poor health and nutritional state, psychological trauma, lack of basic items, shelter, water and sanitation. Protection needs include the need for protection monitoring to ensure the civilian nature of camps and to be able to refer incidents reported, alternative care arrangements as required, support to survivors of SGBV and assistance for people with special needs. The majority of the new arrivals are women (80 per cent of total population, including girls) and/or children (70 per cent), of which some 14,000 are estimated to be unaccompanied or separated.

On 21 January 2015, President Salva Kiir and opposition leader Riek Machar signed an agreement in Arusha (Tanzania) to unify the Sudan People's Liberation Movement (SPLM), which was previously split into three factions. Tanzania's ruling Chama Cha Mapinduzi (CCM) party is mediating the negotiations on the reunification process, with Tanzanian President Jakaya Kikwete hosting the talks. Observers say that the reunification agreement may push the two rival leaders to strike a peace deal during the East Africa regional Leaders Summit due to be held in Addis Ababa on 30 January 2015.

The vastly complex operating environment, and the fluidity of the situation in Gambela and South Sudan, requires actors to apply flexible and agile models of support to the refugee operation.

Coordination and partnerships

In terms of the Movement engagement in Gambela, Swiss Red Cross recently signed an agreement with ERCS to work on long term capacity building of the regional branch and selected communities including support to local staffing within the branch. ICRC follows the situation and developments in Gambela region and supports the ERCS branch capacity developments. The Swedish Red Cross and Austrian Red Cross have supported the operation by seconding delegates to support assessment processes. IFRC, ICRC and PNSs participate in regular co-ordination meetings convened by ERCS. IFRC convenes regular co-ordination meetings in Nairobi and Addis with ICRC and PNS representatives to share updates on the situation in Ethiopia and Movement action to date.

There are currently a wide range of INGOs and agencies present in Gambela. UNHCR is coordinating the overall humanitarian response in collaboration with ARRA (Administration for Refugee and Returnee Affairs), and with support from multiple sector lead agencies, under the Refugee Coordination Model. Coordinated responses have been undertaken in all sectors, including: registration, emergency food rations, relief item packages, transportation away from the border areas, water/sanitation, health and nutrition services, protection, education and shelter. Transit centers have been established at the entry points. UNHCR hosts coordination meetings every two weeks in Addis attended by IFRC, ICRC and ERCS as well as Gambela-based technical/sectoral coordination meetings.

Operational implementation

A memorandum of understanding (MoU) between the IFRC secretariat and the Ethiopian Red Cross has been signed paving the way for implementation of activities in the EPoA. Further to this a letter of agreement (LoA) was signed between the national society and the IFRC Country Office to guide the NS in implementing the EPoA according to the IFRC appeal guidelines. The LoA also outlines the finance control mechanism for work advance and reporting requirements.
